This program offers a "social club" atmosphere for seniors and adults struggling with conditions which limit their ability to participate in community activities independently. Participants include those individuals in both early and later stages of dementia as well as many who remain cognitively intact but are physically frail. The program provides innovative activities designed to enhance cognitive, physical, and social functioning in a supportive and caring environment. A home-style lunch and snacks are provided. Program staff are specially trained to manage behaviors associated with dementia and to provide extra assistance with Activities of Daily Living. The program is also an Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center and maintains a staff to participant ratio of 5:1. Education and support are available to families and caregivers.
